THE Board of Health should attend to all parties throwing refuse into the river and bay. There is a heavy penalty attached to committing an offense of this kind, and it would be well for offenders to "look a little out."

WE are given to understand that parties in Grand Rapids, stockholders in the new park association, are taking steps toward having a grand celebration at Macatawa on July 5. Will the citizens of Holland co-operate with them?

LAST Tuesday a large party of people from this city attended the opening of the Macatawa House. Owing to the very heavy fog which prevailed on the Bay the boat was unable to return until morning, bringing a sleepy lot of passengers.

SAVE up your choicest flowers and hand them to the committee for Memorial Day, to twine around the headstones and strew over the graves of our dear boys in blue, who once left loved ones and home, to battle for our country's freedom, but now lie sleeping under the green sod of our quiet cemeteries.

THE beautiful evenings are now made miserable to the residents in the neighborhood of the corner of Eighth and Cedar streets by the horrible sounds from the horns of the new band practicing in one of the rooms over Harrington's store. WE are pleased to announce that on Tuesday evening next, May 25th, at Lyceum Opera House we have the return lecture of Col. Geo. W. Bain, the Kentucky orator, who, it will be remembered, gave one of the most pleasing lectures of last winter's course. The lecture Tuesday evening, being on Col. Bain's favorite subject "Temperance." We presume it will exceed everything we have had this season.

THROUGH the kindness of Supervisor Van Duren we are enabled to give our readers a few figures from the tax roll, and some statistics which he has collected in "making the rounds." The total valuation of the real estate of the city as fixed by the Board of Review is $595,985; Personal estate $273,450; Total, $869,435. The number of births in the city the past year was 75; The number of deaths was 38, or one death to about every 125 inhabitants. The number of horses in the city is 144; the number of cows is 97.

THE summer resort craze has even struck the quiet city of Grand Haven, our county seat. It is anything to beat Holland now. When any resort can supplant the enjoyment of the splendid ride of six miles down our magnificent Bay, furnish better sailing facilities, and better bass fishing, then they can begin to enter into competition with Macatawa. Until that time all of the so-called resorts on this shore of Lake Michigan, will have to "play second fiddle" to our popular and growing "Coney Island of Michigan."

RICHARD F. TREVELLICK, of Detroit, one of the regular lecturers of the general assembly of the Knights of Labor will speak on the labor question at the Opera House to-night, Saturday evening, under the auspices of Harmony Assembly of this city. There will be no admission charged and all working men and women and manufacturers are most cordially invited to attend. Mr. Trevellick has been lecturing during the past four months in the southern and western states and will undoubtedly give some interesting points on the labor movement in general throughout the country.

LAST Saturday we visited Macatawa, and stopped for a brief visit with Landlord Scott of Macatawa Grove. We were surprised at the amount of improvements that have been made about the grove since last season. He has filled in the low place just south-west of the hotel with at least three hundred loads of sand and has sodded it over; besides this he has cleaned up the premises of all underbrush and it is truly an inviting place. We found several guests at the hotel and everything was lively and tended to encourage our belief that Macatawa Grove will this season be still more popular than ever before. Landlord Ryder of the Park Hotel was busy getting "things put to rights." There are several cottages in course of erection at the Park, besides the circular pavilion which promises to be a most imposing and beautiful structure. It is located about midway between the two large hills and the distance to Lake Michigan and the Bay is about equal.

The concert given by Profs. Wellenstein and Lawson, and Miss Alice Waltz and Miss Anna Miller at the Opera House last week Friday night was an excellent one and would have drawn a full house if it had not been for the heavy rain storm which prevailed during the whole evening. As it was a moderate but enthusiastic audience greeted them. The artists each acquitted themselves to the entire satisfaction of those present. This being the first appearance here of Miss Waltz her singing was anxiously waited for. She was well received and heartily applauded. We hope some time in the future to again have an opportunity of hearing her. Profs. Wellenstein and Lawson's solos on the piano and 'cello were each listened to with rapt attention. Miss Miller sustained her former reputation here and made still more friends. "Music lends enchantment to the soul" and it was with feelings of regret that the audience discovered that the concert was at an end, the program having been faithfully carried out.

The New Park.

Capt. W. A. Gavett, Treasurer M. W. Rose and Messrs. Arthur Meigs, J. Miner and Geo. N. Davis of the West Michigan Park Association and Contractor Rawson visited the park of the Association on the North side of Macatawa Bay on last Tuesday. The tract of land has been surveyed and it is found that the property is much nearer the government pier than was supposed. The land has been nearly all platted and as soon as the work is completed an excursion will be given to the stockholders to enable them to select sites for cottages. A grand celebration will be given at the park July 5, and excursions from all points in Western Michigan will be run there. Arrangements will also be made by the Association to royally entertain the West Michigan Press Association when they come June 14. About a half dozen new names were added to the list of members on Monday and probably the list will be closed Thursday. The capital stock of the company is $10,000, divided into 400 shares, of which each subscriber must take four, entitling themselves to a deed of a lot 50x100 feet as near as a contour of the ground will permit, and be a joint owner in the entire property.

Memorial Day.

The public meeting called by the G. A. R. Post for last Monday evening, at which it was intended to take steps toward observing Memorial Day, proved a complete failure as there was no one present except a few G. A. R. men and one citizen. Feeling rather ashamed of this state of affairs and desiring to properly observe the day a few citizens held a meeting on last Thursday night in the parlors of the City Hotel at which it was resolved to observe the day on Saturday, May 29, and an executive committee was appointed, consisting of Messrs. L. T. Kanter, C. L. Waring, and G. J. Diekema, who were instructed to appoint sub-committees which they did as follows:

Speaker—Mayor McBride, Messrs. W. H. Beach, C. J. De Koo, W. Z. Bangs. Flowers and Decorations—B. Van Putten, W. C. Walsh, D. Gilmore. Music—C. L. Waring and J. Nykerk. Finance—L. T. Kanter and G. J. Van Duren.

Invitation—F. G. Churchill and W. H. Rogers. Grounds—R. E. Werkman, H. Te Roller and Jas. Huntley.

Committee on Reception—Mayor McBride, J. C. Post, W. H. Beach. Order of the Day—Officers of the G. A. R. Post. The program was not completed at this meeting and will not be until the committees have done their work. It appeared to be the general sentiment of the meeting, however, to hold the exercises in the "College Grove" and then to form in procession and march to the cemetery and decorate the graves. This arrangement, it seems to us, would be much more preferable than holding the exercises in the pasture near the cemetery. Next week we will publish the program as arranged. It is expected that all business men will close their places of business during the exercises.

Holland City News.

HOLLAND CITY, MICHIGAN.

THE NEWS CONDENSED.

THE EAST.

BARTLEY CAMPBELL was brought into a New York court by his wife and lawyers, and the Judge ordered him committed to Bellevue Hospital for examination as to his sanity.

HENRY WARD BEECHER, preaching at New York on the question of foreign immigration, did not want the gates closed, saying: "Let the anarchist come. Let the socialist come. Let the communist come. We can eat them, and then digest them into American citizens. We are in no special danger from them." Ex-President Arthur's physicians say he will undoubtedly recover from his present illness.

ALDERMAN JAHNE, the first of the New York boodle Aldermen to be brought to trial, was found guilty of receiving a bribe for voting for the Broadway railway franchise. The jury was out only two hours.

THE WEST.

THE town of Dunkirk, Hardin County, Ohio, was struck by a cyclone early on the morning of Saturday, the 15th inst., and four persons killed and between fifteen and twenty injured. The same storm struck the back of the Pittsburgh, Fort Wayne and Chicago Railroad two miles west of Forest, Ohio. It blew down a tree which scraped the side of the fast east-bound express from Chicago, injuring ten or twelve passengers, one of them seriously, his leg being broken and one eye put out. The storm did great damage along the Blanchard River. A cyclone swept through Albion, Mich., unroofing a number of structures, resulting in heavy losses. Jonas Drury, of Springfield, Ohio, who predicted most accurately the recent storms in that State, based upon records for twenty years, has issued a similar warning for June 13 and 14.

PRESIDENT STRONG has announced the intention of the Atchison Road to build an air-line track from Kansas City to Chicago, forty miles shorter than any other route, without special regard to local traffic, the work to be accomplished within two years. A surveying party located at Keokuk has finished its labors as far eastward as Galesburg, and has a force at work on the route westward to the Missouri River. The inciting cause of the enterprise is the invasion of the State of Kansas by the Rock Island and Burlington roads. A farmer of Inkster, Dakota, named Cowdright recently went to Pennsylvania and married into a good family by means of an introduction from a citizen. At a hotel in Fargo, the other night, the fellow fled with $6,000 and all their baggage, leaving his victim destitute. Most of the money belonged to her. Crop reports from the Northwest, with few exceptions, are of the most favorable character. Frequent rains have fallen, but they have been followed by cool and pleasant weather, and vegetation now has a vigorous start. Frost was visible on the morning of the 16th throughout the region from Lake Michigan to Colorado, but no great damage was reported at any point. While endeavoring to stretch a cable across the river at Tuscumbea, Mo., Richard Higgins and Thomas Barrett were drowned in the presence of their families before aid could be rendered.

LATER and more complete reports from the storm-swept region of Ohio show the loss of life and damage to property to have been greater than the first accounts indicated. The tornado plowed its way in a southeasterly direction through one hundred miles of splendid farming country, leaving desolation in its wake. Seneca, Wyandot, Hancock, Hardin, Auglaize, and Mercer Counties mourn the loss of millions of dollars in property, and, above all, scores of lives. In Mercer County thirty dead bodies had been found, with many times that number injured. Three persons were killed at Wabash City. In Dunkirk, Hardin County, five persons were killed and twenty badly injured; and in the vicinity of the town five more persons were killed and a number injured, two probably fatally. In the Blanchard River valley the storm made a clean sweep ten miles long and half a mile wide, demolishing 100 buildings. Wyandot and Hancock Counties, adjoining one another, were devastated. Carey, a prosperous town in the first-named county, received a tremendous shaking up. Seventeen buildings were completely destroyed and six persons killed outright. Bloomville, South Carey, Wharton, and many other villages suffered in a like manner. Ten miles west of Tiffin, the county seat of Seneca County, a strip of country half a mile wide and several miles in width was totally stripped of buildings, as, in fact, of all else above the surface of the earth. At Kenton and Lancaster and in their neighborhood immense damage was done. Five persons were reported killed and thirteen wounded near Celina. At Findlay two persons were killed and a number injured, and at Forest the elements created great havoc. At the latter place several persons were killed, two churches were destroyed, and so violent was the storm that beds were carried some distance with people in them. The damage, to say nothing of the loss of life, is placed at $400,000. At Kenton a man was killed by lightning, a church was demolished, and considerable damage was done to buildings and property. Around Lima there was great loss among the live stock, and in the vicinity of Bucyrus over twenty buildings were wiped out by the rushing storm. In Indiana, Michigan, and Illinois the winds were also disastrous, but very few cases of loss of life were reported, except two from being struck by lightning at Carlinville, Ill.

THE SOUTH.

A MAD dog belonging to A. J. Hall, a farmer, of Cabott, Ark., bit his milch cow last week. The cow showed symptoms of hydrophobia, as did also two children of Hall's, who had been nourished on the animal's milk. Other members of the family are also ill, but may survive, but no hopes are entertained of the children's recovery.

In the Methodist Episcopal General Conference at Richmond, Va., a committee on espionage reported in favor of electing four new bishops, and the report was adopted. The grain commission house of Tyson & Brothers, of Baltimore, whose liabilities are estimated at $200,000, has made an assignment.

BEN ALI won the Kentucky Derby at Louisville in 2:36, beating the record. A representative of a British syndicate is at Baltimore prepared to contract for building the Chesapeake and Delaware ship canal at a cost of $8,000,000, provided the citizens of Maryland subscribe $1,000,000 toward the project.

GEN. JOHN L. LEWIS, one of the most noted citizens of New Orleans, has just died, in his eighty-sixth year. He served as a courier for Gen. Jackson in the battle with the British forces. He was three times Sheriff of the parish and once Mayor of the city. He was Major General of the forces of Louisiana in the Confederate army when sixty-one years of age. Dan and Lon Mann murdered Marshal Campbell and wounded Officer McCormick, at Bartow, Fla. The murderers were arrested and jailed. Subsequently a crowd of two hundred men surrounded the jail, disarmed the Sheriff, secured the keys, and took the prisoners to a tree near by. While stringing Dan Mann up Lon got loose and ran. He was promptly winged and strung up to the same limb.

WASHINGTON.

THE Cullom interstate commerce bill, as it was passed by the United States Senate, provides as follows:

A commission of five persons shall be appointed by the President, by and with the advice and consent of the Senate, to carry out the purpose of the bill. Not more than three of the five commissioners shall be appointed from the same political party, and all persons holding stocks or bonds of any common carrier, or holding official relations to such corporations, are ineligible. The commissioners must not engage in any other business. The commission is given authority to inquire into the business and management of all common carriers subject to the provisions of the bill, and to obtain full and complete information as to such business; may require the attendance and testimony of witnesses and the production of all books, papers, agreements, tariffs, and documents relating to matter under investigation, and may to that end invoke the aid of the United States Courts. All complaints shall be made in writing to the commission. The commission shall send the complaint to the common carrier, and require either satisfaction of the complaint or an answer in writing within a reasonable time specified. If repatriation is not made within the time stated the commission shall investigate the complaint. The commission shall also investigate all complaints forwarded to it by State commissions, and may institute inquiries on its own motion. Complaints shall not be dismissed because of the absence of direct damage to the complainant. The reports of the commission shall be in writing, and its decision shall be made prima facie evidence in all judicial proceedings.

It is announced with positiveness that the marriage of President Cleveland and Miss Folsom will take place at Buffalo on the 12th of June. A Washington dispatch says: "Secretary Lamar says that since the report went forth that Commissioner Sparks intended resigning he has received hundreds of letters from the Northwest, in which the writers congratulated both themselves and the Government upon Gen. Sparks' speedy retirement. It is Secretary Lamar's belief that the great majority of these letters were written by land sharks. He says that no honest, bona-fide settler has anything to fear from Commissioner Sparks, and that he not only has not requested the Commissioner's resignation, but that he would vigorously protest if Gen. Sparks should intimate an intention to resign."

THE Senate Committee on Territories has ordered a favorable report on the Vest bill fixing the boundaries of Yellowstone Park, providing that it shall hereafter be under the sole and exclusive jurisdiction of the United States, and authorizing the Secretary of the Interior to make and publish rules and regulations for the care of the park.

THE total values of the exports of beef and pork products during the six months ended April 30, 1886, were $37,839,191, against $47,740,183 for the same time in 1885; and the values of the exports of dairy products for the six months ended April 30, 1886, were $10,281,185, as compared with $14,686,019 during the same time in 1885. D. T. Patterson, a son-in-law of the late President Johnson, has been appointed Postmaster at Home, Tennessee, at $240 per year.

POLITICAL.

At Auburn, Ind., the Democrats of the Twelfth District renominated Judge Lowery for Congress. The opponents of the nominee then left the hall in a body. N. D. Wallace, President of the New Orleans Produce Exchange, has been nominated for Congress by the Democrats of the Second Louisiana District. A liquor tax bill, similar to the Scott law, has passed the Ohio Legislature, and goes into effect at once.

T. V. POWDERLY, the Master Workman of the Knights of Labor, is talked of as the Democratic candidate for Congress in the Twelfth District of Pennsylvania.

INDUSTRIAL NOTES.

THE business failures in the United States and Canada for the week numbered 176, against 192 the previous week. It is claimed by the leaders of the eight-hour movement at Chicago that 150 manufacturers and contractors in the city have conceded the demands of the men for eight hours. Some of those who have conceded are paying for eight hours, some for nine, and others for ten. About one-third of the employees in the southwestern lumber district were at work Monday, and business was resumed in all the yards. A large number of the planing mills had also started up, but they were not fully manned. The furniture manufacturers were firm in their refusal to make any concessions. The metal-workers were still holding out for eight hours. Thirty-five of the manufacturers had shut down and sixteen, mostly small shops, were running on eight hours. The Pullman employees stood firm in their demands, and Mr. Pullman threatened to close the mammoth works indefinitely unless the men returned to work. To give in to the strikers, he claimed, would cause a loss to the management of $900 a day, $5,400 a week, or $270,800 a year. The strikers have lost over $80,000 the ten days they have already given to the strike. Thirty-four of the forty-six upholstery firms in Chicago, employing 393 men, have adopted the eight-hour system with ten hours' pay and 20 per cent. increase for piece work. The twelve outstanding firms are practically closed. In Pittsburgh the system is in general use, and in New York seventy-two firms, employing 636 men, have complied with the demand. Secret petitions are circulating among Pennsylvania railroad employees asking a general advance in wages of 10 per cent. The movement, it is claimed, is backed by the Knights of Labor, and is to include both passenger and freight men and all the men in the yards. The masons and hod-carriers of Worcester, Mass., have abandoned their strike, and will seek work individually. Good workmen among the masons will get $3 per day. The new men who were hired during the strike will be retained. There is not much cohesion to the strike movement in Cincinnati now, except among the furniture-makers and safe-makers. Two of the three regiments of militia sent there have gone home. The bricklayers and hod-carriers of Troy, N. Y., have returned to work, the bosses acceding to the demand of the strikers that the eight-hour day be begun at 7 a. m. and end at 4 p. m. Of the 5,100 union furniture workers in New York City there are 3,994 working on the eight-hour basis and 1,106 are locked out and on strike. The bosses are preparing to compel ten hours work all around. Special telegrams to Bradstreet's Journal, of New York, indicate that the industrial agitation in favor of fewer hours' work daily has largely disappeared elsewhere than at Chicago. At New York it has been a practical failure, while at Chicago the attitude of manufacturers in several leading lines in locking out some 47,000 employees who demanded a shorter working day promises to arrest the progress of the movement.

GENERAL.

BEFORE the Curtin Labor Investigating Committee at St. Louis several employees of the Missouri Pacific Railroad shops testified that not only had the March (1885) agreement been broken but its provisions had in several instances not even been put into effect. Father O'Leary, editor of the Catholic World, testified that he knew many strikers who were good honest men and church members. He saw that the company was doing its utmost to crush the Knights of Labor, using unscrupulous means to accomplish its ends. The cause of the strike he had studied, and thought he knew. The Knights were a society formed to teach its members justice and equity, but looking at the entire railway system, he thought it was carried on by trickery and fraud, being governed by villainy and unfairness from Mr. Gould down to the lowest subordinate. He said that the employees of the road who were not Knights of Labor were afraid to speak to members of that organization for fear of being discharged.—Labor notes: Several of the new freight-handlers on the Pittsburgh, Fort Wayne and Chicago Road at Chicago became ill from the change of water and diet. They were doctored up with whisky and ginger, and nearly all the rest of the gang, on discovering what sort of medicine was being given out, became violently afflicted with cramps. One Seidell, a boycotter, was fined $25 and costs at Milwaukee by Judge Mallory, who denounced the boycotting business as an outrage. About eleven hundred carpenters at Allegheny City have struck for more pay and less hours. The switchmen's strike at Indianapolis has proved a failure. The Pittsburgh companies have granted the demands of their striking employees for an advance in wages of $2 per week, and all have returned to work. There were 17,500 lumber-shovers on a strike in Chicago last Thursday. The strikers at the Standard Coke Works at Mount Pleasant, Pa., have returned to work, a compromise having been effected.

NEARLY all the boot and shoe manufacturers of Chicago, after having tried the eight-hour system for two weeks, met and resolved to return to the ten-hour schedule, and not to knowingly employ an anarchist or socialist. The cutting departments of all the wholesale clothing houses in Chicago closed for an indefinite period on account of a strike of male and female tailors for better pay. The bakers and the ice men of Pittsburgh obtained their demands, and have returned to work. The washerwomen of Pittsburgh have organized a close union, and will hereafter demand $1 a day for six hours' work.

It now seems probable, says the Chicago Tribune, that the large clearances of wheat from the Atlantic seaboard during last week will prove to have reduced our visible supply in the United States to a little less than 40,000,000 bushels. It is not unreasonable to expect that it will be lessened to about 30,000,000 bushels by the close of June.

FOREIGN.

M. PILLOT, a Paris defaulter who recently fled, suddenly appeared the other day in the office of a director of the Banque Descompte and with a loaded revolver compelled the bank official to sign checks for $30,000, with which Pillot then made good his escape. Heavy rains occurred in various portions of England Friday, doing much damage to crops and public highways. At a meeting in London, Lord Hartington informed his followers that sufficient liberal votes had been pledged to insure the rejection of Gladstone's home-rule bill on its second reading. An English bicyclist, named Stephens, who undertook a tour of the world on his wheel, was arrested while crossing the frontier of Afghanistan.

THE weather in France last week was cold and squally. Terrific storms occurred throughout the country. Near Montpellier the vineyards were destroyed. The damage is placed at 1,000,000 francs. A hurricane passed over the town and partially destroyed it. Several persons were killed and a number injured. Severe gales were also experienced in Germany. Two ships that were lying in the River Oder foundered and five persons were drowned. A cyclone which passed over Lonato, a town of Lombardy, destroyed a large number of houses. Five persons were killed. The work of Germanizing the schools of Prussia has commenced, the first step in which is the passage of a law giving the Government the appointment of all the teachers. Izet Bey, military attaché of the Turkish Embassy at Paris, fought Viscount Vigier a duel with swords. The latter was wounded. The Pasteur institute fund, in London, has reached $150,000.

ADDITIONAL NEWS.

JUDGE ROGERS, of Chicago, in charging the Grand Jury authorized to take charge of the cases of the murderous Anarchists, told them that no public speaker had a right to advise murder or arson, and that one could be held responsible for the result of incendiary language. Said he:

"I refer to these constitutional rights because some men who are so inconsistent as to say that there should be no law and no such rights as that, yet claim the protection of that right in its broadest sense—and, indeed, interpret to suit their own mind—that a man may get up in a public speech and advise murder, arson, the destruction of property, and the injury of people and their lives. That is a wild license that the Constitution of this country has never recognized, any more than it has been recognized in the worst despotisms of old monarchial Europe, and I hope and you hope never will recognize. A man must be held responsible for his acts, and he must as well be held responsible for his speech."

Another of the wounded police officers has died at Chicago, making the sixth policeman murdered by the bomb on the 4th of May.

THE boot and shoe manufacturers of Chicago have decided to return to the ten-hour system. The planing mill owners of Chicago rejected the proposition of the striking box makers to return to work at eight hours per day for eight hours' pay. Among the industries most seriously injured by the labor strikes is the building trade, both at the East and West. In Boston, it is said that of $3,000,000 awaiting investment this year in building operations during the coming summer, more than $1,500,000 has been withdrawn, owing to the timidity of investors, in consequence of a prospective prolongation of the labor troubles. In New York, as the mechanics and laborers made settlements with the builders in advance, no strike has occurred, and consequently the depression in the trade there is not nearly so great as in other cities. In Chicago, the builders, previous to the strikes, generally refused to enter into large contracts until they could fully determine what would be the outcome of the then anticipated labor troubles, including the eight-hour movement. The result has been that a very large amount of capital which would have been invested in building has been held back, and, as a consequence, both the general trade and labor markets have been most seriously injured, with no material corresponding benefit.

THE cod-fishing schooner Ellen M. Doughty, of Portland, Me., was seized at Englishtown, St. Ann's, C. B., for buying bait on a permit from the Portland Custom House. The firm at once notified Secretary Bayard and Senator Frye. There is tremendous excitement at Portland over this second seizure, and everybody is eager for retaliation. The fishing schooner David J. Adams was pounced upon by the Britishers only a few days before the seizure of the Doughty. The visible supply of wheat and corn is, respectively, 39,590,730 and 9,817,861 bushels. Since last report wheat decreased 2,356,801 bushels, and corn has been reduced 805,042 bushels.

UNDER directions of the Ways and Means Committee Mr. Morrison will call up the tariff bill in the House as soon as the legislative and executive appropriation bill is disposed of, so reports a Washington correspondent, who assumes to speak by the card.

IN a fight at Martinsville, Va., J. K. Terry was killed, and the latter's brothers, Colonel P. D. Spencer, three other white men, and two negroes probably mortally wounded.

SENATOR FRYE's bill authorizing retaliation for the recent action of the Dominion of Canada in excluding United States vessels from certain privileges in Canadian ports passed the Senate on the 17th inst. The Senate confirmed the nomination of Mrs. Thompson, Postmistress at Louisville, Ky., after debating over it for an hour. Senator Blackburn made a long speech against confirmation, but secured only five negative votes besides his own. The House passed the urgent deficiency appropriation bill, by a vote of 293 to 8 the Senate bill providing for the study of the nature of alcoholic drinks and narcotics, and of their effects upon the human system, by the pupils in the public schools of the Territories and of the District of Columbia, and in the Military and Naval Academies and Indian and colored schools in the Territories of the United States. Mr. Boutelle introduced in the House a bill appropriating $30,000 for the erection in Washington of a bronze monument to the late Edwin M. Stanton.

CONGRESSIONAL.

The Work of the Senate and House of Representatives.

THE Senate, in discussing the interstate commerce bill, on the 15th inst., tabled an amendment to fine and imprison men who conspire to interfere with the running of trains. The President nominated Clarence E. Greathouse, of California, to be Consul General at Kanagawa. The House of Representatives passed a bill for the appointment of three commissioners, to settle Spanish and Mexican land claims in the State of Colorado and the Territories of New Mexico and Arizona. They are to receive salaries of $5,000 each, and to serve for four years. While the army appropriation bill was under consideration, Mr. Wheeler, of Alabama, made charges against Edwin M. Stanton, Mr. Lincoln's Secretary of War, which precipitated a violent partisan debate, Messrs. Hepburn, of Iowa, and Hiscock, of New York, coming to the defense of the dead War Secretary.

SENATOR MITCHELL, of Oregon, submitted in the Senate, on the 15th inst., a concurrent resolution expressing it to be the sense of Congress that negotiations should be entered into between the United States and Chinese Governments with a view to securing such modifications of the present treaty with China as may result in stopping the coming of Chinese to this country, except in the case of diplomats and their servants, and except also in the case of persons at sea to seek a place of shelter. The Senate, by a vote of 47 to 4, passed the interstate commerce bill, which provides for a commission of five persons, with a principal office at Washington, to inquire into the business and management of all common carriers. The House of Representatives passed the army appropriation bill, after voting down an amendment to increase by $100,000 the item for the Springfield armory. A bill extending the jurisdiction of the Court of Claims over claims for the use of patents and patented inventions against the United States was reported to the House. The House considered the diplomatic appropriation bill without disposing of it.

THE general pension bill was discussed by the Senate on the 15th inst. The Senate concurred in the House amendments to the bill providing for the sale of the old bridewell lot in Chicago. The following nominations were confirmed: Collectors Seeburger of Chicago, Seipp of Milwaukee, Cadwallader of Philadelphia; Marshal W. M. Campbell of Minnesota; H. F. Merritt, Consul at Aix-la-Chapelle; L. T. Boyd, Receiver of Public Moneys at Rayfield, Wis.; and J. B. Webb, Register of the Land Office at LaCrosse, Wis. The House of Representatives passed the diplomatic and consular appropriation bill, with an item of $150,000 for contingent expenses at consulates. The House discussed without action the bill to enlarge the powers and duties of the Department of Agriculture. Messrs. McCreary (Ky.) and Weaver (Iowa) supported the measure. Mr. Reagan (Texas) opposed it on constitutional grounds, and said he would offer as a substitute his bill to create a Department of Industries.

A PETITION from citizens of Iowa, praying for the abolition of the American House of Lords, was presented in the Senate on the 15th inst. A bill was passed to authorize the Kansas City and Gulf Road to lay its tracks through Indian Territory. Bills were also passed for public buildings at Lafayette, Indiana, Fort Dodge, Iowa, and St. Paul, besides largely extending the limit of previous appropriations for other points. Henry F. Severns, of Kalamazoo, Michigan, was nominated by the President as successor to the late S. L. Withay as United States Judge for the Western District of Michigan. D. C. Fulton was nominated United States Marshal for the Western District of Wisconsin. The business of the House was confined to debate on the pension bill, which merged itself into a tariff talk before adjournment was reached.

AFTER adjournment the House of Representatives, on the 15th inst., passed a bill to establish a sub-treasury at Louisville. Mr. Morrison caused to be read a letter from the Treasurer of the United States, expressing the opinion that the functions of the sub-treasuries at St. Louis, Baltimore, Cincinnati, New Orleans, and Chicago might be performed by national banks with greater economy and much less risk than under the present system. The Senate was not in session.

Our Ex-Presidents.

The Drawer referred some time ago to the young man who is one day to be President of the United States, and the desirability of his fitting himself for this position. But on reflection the subject assumes a graver aspect. What the young man ought to be thinking of is his ability to become an ex-President. Anybody can be President who gets votes enough: the ability to get the votes is quite distinct from the qualifications to fill the office. And when a man is in, thanks to the excellence of our machinery, he cannot do much injury in four years, except to himself and his party. Moderate ability will carry him through respectably. But it requires a great man to be a successful ex-President. The office of President is a very exalted one. And when the man lays it down and retires and stands alone, and people compare him with the position he has just left, he must have very large proportions to stand the comparison. This aspect of the case has not been enough considered. Men are very anxious to get the office, and their friends push them for it, without thinking of the figure the successful man may make when his term is over. The fact is, that in the contrast he may appear much more insignificant than if he had remained in private life. There has been a great deal of talk lately about giving the ex-Presidents a pension in order to place them in a position of dignity, and enable them to maintain something of the state the people have been accustomed to see them in. It has been often remarked that a king out of business becomes an object of compassion, even if he has invested money in foreign funds. Nothing but the possession of great qualities can save him from contempt. It is so with an ex-President. The practical suggestion to be made, therefore, is that the young man to whom we have alluded should fit himself to be an ex-President. If he cannot attain the character and the qualities needed for that, he may be sure that the office of President will be but a hollow satisfaction.—Charles Dudley Warner, in Harper's Magazine.

When Hannibal Hamlin Was a Boy.

A story of a youthful prank of Hannibal Hamlin is told. When the ex-Vice President was a boy in Paris seven persons were baptized in a stream north of Paris Hill. Hamlin was one of a party of boys who, hearing of the approaching ceremony, smuggled an old cannon and seven cartridges into the woods near the stream. As the dripping converts, one by one, were led out of the stream, one by one the cartridges boomed in the old cannon. The unholy salute caused great consternation and anger, but the mischievous youngsters were not caught.—Norway (Me.) Advertiser.

HOLLAND CITY, MICHIGAN.

A cow at Galesburg, Ill., was struck by a locomotive and thrown high into the air. She landed on her feet and resumed her peaceful occupation of eating grass as if nothing had happened.

An effort is being made in Stockholm to introduce the custom of sending instead of flowers to a funeral a card on which is inscribed a receipt for a contribution to some benevolent institution. Such cards for the amount of five crowns each can be had at the bookstore for the benefit of a proposed children's hospital.

THE poetical name of Galveston is the Oleander City, but, according to the Galveston News, the trees which gave the city that title have been destroyed by the extraordinary frosts of last winter. Says the News: "It is not exaggerating the case whatever in asserting that there will not be a solitary oleander in bloom this summer and perhaps for many summers to come."

THE cholera epidemic has appeared in Europe, and will undoubtedly make an appearance in this country this season unless every precaution is taken to keep it down. Cleanliness of house and street is essential. With the virulence it had in Western Europe last season it is altogether likely that we shall not go free. It marches as it always has, steadily westward, partaking somewhat of force from curious and unknown conditions of the atmosphere.

LOUISVILLE is all torn up over the remarkable action of one of her society ladies. Two ladies of color, living in the same residence, are at enmity over the fact that one of them, on the occasion of the other having "company," bored a hole through the partition to see who it was. The one who had company resented this, and blew black pepper into the eye that was presented to the aperture. War followed at once, of course, and the trouble has not yet been adjusted.

THE New York legislature has passed and the Governor has signed a bill termed "The Niagara Tunnel and Sewer Bill," which is expected to make Niagara Falls one of the great commercial centers of the State. Rights have been granted the incorporators to construct a tunnel, erect mills, build wharves, and engage in developing the water power of the Niagara river. The tunnel is to be two miles in length, along the edge of the river, and is expected to furnish power enough for 155 mills.

If it were possible to rise above the atmosphere which surrounds the earth, we should see nothing but an intense and sharply-defined ball of fire, while everything else would be wrapped in total darkness. There could be no diffusion of light without an atmosphere or some similar medium for it to act upon; but if the air about us extended to a height of seven hundred miles the rays of the sun could not penetrate it, and we should be left in darkness. At the depth of seven hundred feet in the ocean the light ceases altogether, one-half of the light being absorbed in passing through only seven feet of the purest water.

A KENNEL on a large scale is to be started in Nashville, Tenn., by business men of that city. It is intended to breed all sorts of pure strained fancy animals. A specialty will be made of mastiffs. Col. Fred Grant, son of the late Gen. U. S. Grant, is probably the most fashionable breeder of mastiffs in this country. His kennels are at Boston, Mass., and he has forty-seven stock dogs. A letter received from Col. Fred Grant by a gentleman in Nashville says: "My stock dog Major is undoubtedly the largest and most distinguished private mastiff in our country, and is valued at $2,500. Attached to a sixty-pound wagon, he draws with ease and safety my four children, entering into the sport with apparent delight."

A POLITICAL organization in Philadelphia, composed wholly of Milesians, recently elected a new President. At the meeting following his installation he had the melancholy duty to perform of announcing the decease of one of the members. His remarks on the occasion are reported by the News as follows: "Gentlemen, it is my sad duty to announce to ye that our fellow-member Patrick O'Flaherty was run over an' kilt by the Reading cars since our last meeting. He was a kind son, a good husband, a worthy father, a thrue friend, an' in every respect a number wan man. Furthermore, he was an active member of this association an' a straightforward Democrat, but that's nayther here ner there; all we kin do is to say blessed is the will of the Lord, an' all in favor of the motion will signify the same by saying aye!"

"We have a terrible enemy to contend with. He strikes in the dark as he works in the dark." Arise in your might and crush him out. He should be classed as a criminal of the lowest and most dangerous order, but the sharpest and most unprincipled lawyers and lobbyists in the country will be employed to defend him, and conspire against us. We suffer a terrible wrong and we must organize to resist it." The foregoing eloquent and pathetic extracts are not the utterances of a Knight of Labor crushed by a heartless monopoly. It is not the speech of a victim of the "demon rum." It is not the cry of the slave from under the heel of the oppressor. The outburst is from none of these. Far worse. It is the appeal for help of the victim of oleomargarine, the outcry of the dairymen against the unprincipled manufacturer of imitation butter. Joseph H. Reall, President of the American Dairymen Association, is the spokesman, and he calls upon all farmers to rally around honest butter and defeat their enemies.

OF Gen. Von Manteuffel, the late German military Governor of conquered Alsace, who hated all that was French, it is said that he once, at a public dinner, engaged in a dispute with a French diplomat who maintained the superiority of the French workmen over the artisans of all other nations. "A thing so ugly does not exist that the skill and genius of a Frenchman cannot make of it a thing of beauty," he said. Angered by the contradiction, the old soldier pulled a hair from his bristly gray mustache and, handing it to the Frenchman, said, curtly, "Let him make a thing of beauty out of that, then, and prove your claim." The Frenchman took the hair and sent it in a letter to a well-known Parisian jeweler, with a statement of the case and an appeal to his patriotic pride, giving him no limit of expense in executing the order. A week later the mail from Paris brought a neat little box for the general. In it was a handsome scarf-pin, made like a Prussian eagle, that held in its talons a stiff gray bristle, from either end of which dangled a tiny golden ball. One was inscribed Alsace, the other Lorraine, and on the eagle's perch were the words: "You hold them but by a hair."

A HORRIBLE deed of blood committed near Girgenti gives an illustration of the use of the knife in the Island of Sicily. Two butchers, father and son, of the name of Indelicato, who kept a shop in that town, not long since took two brothers named Alfonso and Giovanni Cannetoni into partnership. Before long the Cannetonis began to trade in lambs' carcasses separately on their own account, and disagreements arose, which ultimately led to a collision between Baldassare Indelicato and Alfonso Cannetoni. They drew their butchers' knives from their belts on each other. Alfonso aimed a well-directed blow at Baldassare. He parried it with his left arm, which was cut to the bone, and at the same instant drove his knife into the heart of Alfonso, who fell dead on the spot. At that moment a young son of Alfonso, aged 19, came up with a bludgeon to his father's assistance. Baldassare struck him to the ground, and then cut his throat across "as he would have slaughtered a sheep." Mad with rage, Baldassare then rushed into the shop, and taking Giovanni, the younger brother of Alfonso, by surprise, killed him with a slash across the abdomen. Turning then to leave the shop he inflicted a serious wound on a person just entering. All this occurred in the space of four minutes, the result of the collision being three persons killed and two wounded.

Respect for Woman.

Let our young men strive to reach a higher moral attitude. Let them divest themselves of this base cynical spirit in which they so often wrap themselves. Let them cling to the old belief that, after all, there is such a thing as maidenly purity and womanly virtue, that love has not yet died out, and that the freshness of Eden still finds lodgment in many a heart. They will be none the worse for believing that the actress on the stage or the hard-working girl in the shop or the factory should inspire the same reverence as the spoiled child of Fashion; none the worse for treating all women with respect, whether in their presence or during their absence; for keeping their own records clean, and for being simple-minded enough to believe that "virtue alone is happiness below." For an acceptable companion in life, give me the fellow who thinks mostly of I do or as some one else thinks when I want him to.

The bride is an heiress, her guardian being a stern uncle who strongly opposed the suit of young Downie. The swindle was pointed out in their local papers, they went into it with their eyes open, and with full knowledge that every bushel they raised was so much blood money from brother farmers. In other words, knowing it to be a swindle, they deliberately, knowingly, and willingly became a party to it. Who cares for such sufferers.

—South Bend (Ind.) Tribune: The writer saw, a few days ago, in a Sturgis, Mich., paper, a queer local item. It read: "Miss Smith's lame—pigeon-toed." In the next week's issue the editor indignantly spurned the idea of so handsome and graceful a lady as Miss Smith being either lame or pigeon-toed, and explained that he wrote "Miss Smith's tame pigeon is dead." This paper could, of course, be pardoned for its blunder when so careful a paper as the Cincinnati Commercial had to humbly explain that when it spoke of the "servant-girl graduates" of an "institute," it was simply due to the perversity of the types, "sweet girl graduates" being, of course, intended.

—Mrs. S. D. Moore died near Adrian, a few days ago, aged seventy-one years. Her husband, who is an atheist, refused to have a clergyman officiate at the funeral. At the house Mr. Moore, who is an old man, read an extract from the "Footprints of Life," and then gave a sketch of the life of his wife. He then extended an invitation to any one to make remarks from a secular standpoint. The eldest daughter read a poem which she had prepared for the occasion, in which she acknowledged a Heavenly Father, who "folds His loved ones in His arms and quiets them to rest." At the grave the husband tenderly bade his wife farewell, closing by saying: "We are of the earth and must return to the earth again." The daughter, standing by her father, recited another verse, in which she acknowledged God and the spirit land.

—The Flint Democrat tells the following excellent story of a well-known physician. It may not be true, but it reads well: Everybody knows Dr. —, of this city, but everybody does not know a little experience of his which came to a head recently. The Doctor has been treating a family out in the country for some time, and had acquired quite a bill against them for his services. He had asked for the cash several times, but was unable to get it. Finally the farmer said that he would send some garden produce for the amount of the bill, and accordingly the Doctor received by freight yesterday eighty-four bushels of horse-radish. The Doctor was nonplused, and is now engaged in skirmishing around among the dealers in the effort to find some one who will take the stuff off his hands. He has succeeded in getting rid of about four bushels, and still clings to the eighty.

HOWLING HURRICANES.

Several Towns in Illinois and Indiana Partially Wrecked by Cyclones—Loss of Life and Property.

A terrible hurricane accompanied by lightning and sheets of rain struck the town of Odell, Ill., eighty-one miles south of Chicago, on the afternoon of Wednesday, the 12th inst., causing loss of life and great destruction of property. The north-bound Chicago and Alton train encountered the storm some miles southwest of Odell, but did not experience its full force until that place was reached. As the train pulled into the station a shower of boards struck the engine and tender, a large shed on the right of the track having been demolished and its wreck sent whirling over the prairie. On the left of the station a livery stable with an adjoining shed full of horses, carriages, and farmers' teams was totally wrecked. The large brick store of S. S. Cole was laid in ruins and four children buried beneath it—the daughters of John Miller. As the store went down, broken bricks, fragments of mortar, and pieces of timbers were whirled through the air and dashed against the sides of the cars, breaking the windows and creating a wild degree of terror among the passengers.

As soon as the tempest lulled sufficiently many of the passengers jumped from the train and made a hasty exploration of the ruins. Efforts were made to clear the debris from the Cole building, and the children were rescued. Three were seriously hurt, but will survive, and the others miraculously escaped injury. The searchers then proceeded with their work, assisted by the calmer of the citizens, but for the most part the residents seemed crazed by the calamity and stood about the streets gazing at the wreck of their property and wailing in a distressing manner. Altogether about seven persons sustained serious injuries, of whom those likely to die are: Lottie Zwill, a ten-year-old girl, who was carried over 200 feet in the air and fell on the railroad track, smashing her skull. George and Charles Hoke, livermen. S. S. Cole, hardware merchant.

The view presented to the eyes of the passengers as they looked about the town was startling. Every portion of the village showed traces of the wide-spread wreck wrought by the storm. It demolished one brick block, wrecked three warehouses, unroofed the hotel, the Masonic Hall, and four store buildings, and tore to pieces the upper story of the Angell block, in which the Odell Bank and the Odd-Fellows' Hall were located. Hardly a storehouse in town escaped injury, and many dwelling-houses were demolished. The loss will exceed $50,000. Houses, barns and sheds were twisted from their foundations and completely destroyed. Trees a foot in diameter were twisted entirely to pieces. The storm did not last more than five minutes. Ten minutes before it appeared the air seemed to get green. Two clouds appeared to advance, one from the southeast, the other from the southwest, and met over the town, forming a monstrous whirlwind, which swept everything in its track.

P. W. Kenyon's lumber yard, a few yards away from the station, was taken up bodily by the wind and scattered for rods around. But the flying boards broke the force of the wind to some extent and protected the train from injury.

At Dwight floods of rain had fallen, preceded by hailstones of remarkable size, some weighing from five to six ounces. The storm moved in an easterly direction, passing into Indiana.

California's New Senator.

Mr. George Hearst, appointed by Gov. Stoneman, of California, to succeed the late Senator Miller, has had an eventful history. He went to California across the plains in 1850, and commenced as a common laborer in the mines. Finally he made some money and formed a partnership with Haggis & Tevis, and the firm has amassed a large fortune in jumping and buying mining claims. They now own one of the largest and most profitable mines in Butte City, Montana, and also mines in Arizona, Colorado, Oregon, Mexico, Idaho, and California. Mr. Hearst is considered the most expert prospector on the Pacific coast, and his judgment in regard to a mine has never yet been at fault. He is a tall, well-formed man about 55 years old. He was a candidate for Governor of California in 1882, but Gen. Stoneman secured the nomination and was elected. At the time of Senator Stanford's election in 1885 Mr. Hearst received the complimentary votes of the Democrats. He is a very wealthy man, and among his real estate owns 40,000 acres of the finest lands in the State, situated in San Luis Obispo. He is the sole owner of the San Francisco Examiner. Senator Hearst made his maiden speech in the Senate a few days ago, when he asked that a petition introduced by him might "be placed on record." This sally was greeted with subdued laughter, for the Senator merely wanted the petition printed in the Record. This incident recalled to old stagers the first speech made in the Senate by Mr. Tabor, who was also a Western member. The yeas and nays were being called when Mr. Tabor said: "Mr. President, I am paired off with the Senator from Hampton, Mr. South Carolina." It was only in the Senate for a month, and that was the only speech Mr. Tabor made until he presented the credentials of his successor.

RAIN'S RAVAGES.

A Flood in Shawnee Creek Causes a Terrible Disaster at Xenia, Ohio.

A Total Loss of Life Estimated at Nearly Thirty—Much Destruction of Property.

A cloud-burst at Xenia, Ohio, on the night of Wednesday, the 13th inst., speedily filled all streams in the vicinity, and the water, laden with logs, rushing into a railway culvert, quickly formed a dam of huge dimensions, which was burst by the pressure of the water. The flood, when released, swept through the town, carrying off everything in its path. In some instances whole families were drowned. The number drowned or missing is placed at twenty-seven, while the loss to property will reach $100,000. A Xenia dispatch gives the following details of the terrible affair: It seemed as if a water-spout had burst over the place, the streets and alleys running full like rivers, and with a powerful current, carrying everything before it. The point of danger that threatened to engulf the city and afterward did prove to be the source of wholesale drowning of the people and destruction of property was Archer Creek, a small stream that runs through the town and into a culvert under the Pan Handle Railway depot. This stream became so greatly swollen on account of the heavy rain that the culvert was taxed to its utmost to give the water vent, and driftwood began coming down the swollen stream and was caught at the culvert until a great dam was formed. A number of citizens, perceiving the danger that threatened them, went out in the storm and worked earnestly to dislodge the timber and drift, but the force of the current was such that they became jammed in so tightly that it was impossible to dislodge them. The water backed up and soon overflowed its barriers and formed a mighty reservoir. In a short time the embankment gave way under the pressure, and the huge volume of water that stretched out like a sea broke over with a sullen roar and ran like a mill-race through the streets of the city, tearing down trees and washing away houses in its mad flight of destruction. The cries of the people in the flooded district were awful to hear. Many acts of heroism in saving the drowning are reported. Bonfires were lighted and the people worked all night. Twenty bodies were recovered and there are still a number missing. Whole families perished in the flooded districts. There was great damage to property all round in the country, and the extent of damage cannot now be even approximated.

The people residing in quarters not covered by the flood made up rescuing parties, and by the hundreds ran to the scene of desolation and death. The storm in the meantime raged with unparalleled fury, and persons out on missions of mercy endeavoring to save the unfortunate were almost carried off their feet by the wild sweep of the rain and wind.

The work of finding the bodies was prosecuted all night. The Mayor's office was turned into a morgue, and twenty-two bodies were conveyed there. The scenes were heartrending.

The loss of houses is placed at sixty-eight, and it is believed the death-list will reach thirty. Appeals for aid have been sent out by the authorities, and donations are asked for in behalf of the stricken people. The great majority of those thrown out of their homes were poor people, and aid is earnestly asked in their behalf.

STORM-DAMAGE ELSEWHERE.

Wreck and Ruin in Illinois, Indiana, and Ohio.

The storm which did such fearful work at Xenia was far-reaching, extending throughout Northern and Central Illinois, Central Indiana, and Central Ohio. The winds blew a hurricane and the rain fell in torrents, flooding streams, and washing away bridges, culverts, and farm fences. At Dayton, Ohio, the rainfall measured four and a half inches in three hours. It is roughly estimated that the damage to property in Ohio alone will reach $500,000. Many of the railroads were seriously crippled by washouts. Indiana suffered severely from this phenomenal meteorological disturbance. At Kempton many houses were partially wrecked, one man killed, and several wounded. At Wilkinson the storm blew down all the buildings in town except three. Samuel White was killed, and his wife was fatally injured. A boy named Shaffer was also killed, and about twenty persons seriously hurt, several of whom will die. At Lafayette the Court House and the Roman Catholic and German Methodist Churches were badly damaged, two large carpenter shops burned to the ground by the lightning, and numbers of smaller buildings demolished. At Attica the buildings of the Attica Milling Company, the Revere House, the Hess and Harvey Carriage Factory, the depot, and nearly a hundred dwellings and smaller business houses were destroyed. Over 700 people are homeless, four were killed outright and two more fatally injured, while a large number are seriously hurt. The aggregate losses at Attica will be in the neighborhood of $200,000. Seventy buildings were hit hard, being half demolished or entirely annihilated. One of the many losses at Attica will be of valuable shade trees, the district swept over being almost entirely devastated in this respect. At Williamsport several houses were wrecked, two persons killed, and a number badly injured. At Logansport property was damaged to the amount of $10,000. In the vicinity of Richmond houses and barns were wrecked, whole woods ruined, some stock killed, and one barn destroyed by lightning. Reports from Tipton, Taylors, Monon, and intermediate points show great loss of property, live stock, and crops. Many persons are reported injured from all points, and it seems miraculous that the loss of life was so small. The Wabash River inundated the crops along its valley and ruined them. In Illinois the storm was not so violent, though much damage was inflicted in certain sections. Near East Lynn, Rossville, and Potomac a number of houses were demolished and five persons killed. The country was deluged by the tremendous rainfall. The damage by the storm in Jo Daviess County will exceed $20,000. Buildings were unroofed, glass broken, and fences leveled. Several houses were wrecked in the vicinity of Jacksonville, and two or three people seriously injured.

Mr. Thos. Buets has on exhibition at his tinshop a church made entirely of tin. It is the work of his father and is patterned after the Holland Church at Holland City. It is a curiosity, and worthy of inspection.—Cedar Springs Clipper.

THE contract for building the pavilion for the West Michigan Park Association at Macatawa was let at a meeting of the board of directors of the Association held at the Morton House, Grand Rapids, on last Saturday evening, to Messrs. Rawson Bros. Their bid was $6,250 and was the lowest. The building is to be completed by June 21, and will be located just north and east of the inner end of the north pier.

SEVERAL cars of the "Dutch local," a freight train running between this city and Big Rapids, jumped the track at Turn-bull's siding on last Monday morning. The caboose was one of the cars derailed, and as it was occupied by the conductor and trainmen, all were badly shaken up. Conductor Swift, of this city, sustained injuries to the body, and his arm was badly bruised. He will be laid up for some time.

THE Zealand Teachers' Association meets on the first Saturday in June. The following program will be carried out:

OUT AROUND.

Lake Shore.

Pete Chaffee, the exhorter, was on hand at the school house on May 2, and on May the 9th. He tried to unroll his ball and says that he has a skein or tangle to unravel and it must be did. If the people won't turn out to hear him in this neighborhood he will have to go somewhere else. We think that his "skein" must be moth eaten or else the mice have been at it by the way that he picked at it from all sides. The proper way to unravel a skein, as we understand it, is to commence at the right end, and reel her right off. We must make allowance, however, as he is new in the business and had a bad cold. ...Mr. T. Reed planted out about five hundred peach trees this spring. ...J. Cochran has set out about three hundred peach trees and about five hundred grape vines. ...Mr. J. F. Joscelyn and family have moved to Lamont. ...Mr. Steve Hartwell and family came to Ventura a few days ago "bag and baggage." The people gave him the cold shoulder and he has left again for Grand Rapids where he can ply his trade to a better advantage. ...Some "Beachcombers" stole a lot of square timber, but Geo. West soon captured them and the timber near John Ausiker's old pier and took charge of it. They had taken it north on a raft. ...I wonder if the Rev. Mr. Rible is going to put all of his time and work on the north part of his charge. It looks that way. He was here, however, and preached to a small congregation on the 9th inst., which is the first time in six or eight weeks. He cannot expect that the people will come out to meeting unless he keeps his appointments. ...Some people here on the Lake Shore always hang back, and have not got their corn planted yet. Others of our residents have had theirs planted for a long time, in fact they imagine they have it partly cut already. "Doc."

West Olive.

It is too soon yet to discern the extent of the damage caused by the late frosts. Mr. Names, a large farmer living near here, says that his peaches and cherries were badly injured, apples sustained less injury. Mr. Souter, living farther south said that the frost was less severe at his place than here. ...Mrs. R. D. Bacon, who has been sick for awhile, is about again. ...Mr. Roswell Reynolds, of Coopersville, brother to our telegraph operator, is with him here again. ...Mr. Frank Harvey's daughter, Dora, was married last Sunday, in Holland, to Mr. Osborne, of the latter place. ...Solomon Priest, of Johnsville, who, last August had a cow killed by the cars, but has not, as yet, received any compensation from the railroad company, was here this week soliciting aid, whereby he might get another cow. ...Beach wood and pine bolts are being shipped from here to Grand Rapids. ...Mr. G. W. Davidson is to build a store, dwelling, and barn, instead of a stone dwelling and barn, as printed last week. ...Miss Nina Cady is acting as seamstress, we believe, at C. Jones', Olive Center. Common Council.

HOLLAND, Mich., May 18, 1886.

The Common Council met in regular session and was called to order by the Mayor.

Members present: Mayor McBride, Alderman Ter Vree, Harrington, Bangs, De Merell, De Roo, Steketee, Bertsch, Kuite and the Clerk.

Minutes of the last five meetings were read and approved.

H. D. Cook and three others petitioned that a passable track be made from Cedar to Market street, between blocks 54 and 59.—Referred to the Committee on Streets and Bridges.

The following bills were presented for payment: Robert B. Best, salary as city physician, $50.00; Robert B. Best, salary as health officer, $12.50; Alfred Huntley, salary as chief engineer of fire department, $50.00; C. Ver Schure, salary as city treasurer, $22.50; Edward Vanpel, salary as city marshal, $39.17; Geo. H. Sipp, salary as city clerk, $37.50; J. De Veyler, salary as city clerk, $1.75; C. Ver Schure, one receipt book, 35c.; Peninsular Gas Light Co., repairs on 22 street lamp burners, $4.11.—Allowed and warrants ordered issued on the city treasurer for the several amounts.

The Committee on Streets and Bridges reported that the covering of several of the fire wells were in a bad condition and recommended that they be repaired. Also reported on the petition of Jan Lageste and six others, asking that a street lamp be placed at the foot of Eighth street, and recommended that the prayers of the petitioners be not granted.—Adopted and the committee instructed to attend to the re-covering of fire wells.

The Committee on Poor reported, presenting the semi-monthly report of the Director of the Poor and said committee, recommending $23.00 for the support of the poor for the two weeks ending June 2nd, 1886, and having rendered temporary aid to the amount of $21.25.—Adopted and warrants ordered issued on the city treasurer for the several amounts.

Moved by Ald. Harrington that the Director of the Poor be directed to look into the claim of John Oggel to a pension, if he finds that the claim is good and that Mr. Oggel refuses to prosecute said claim, then to strike Mr. Oggel's name from the list of persons to receive aid from the City of Holland.—Adopted.

The chairman of the select committee on procuring prices of salaries, presented a number of papers relating to prices of various sizes, styles, etc.

Moved by Ald. De Merell that the papers be read by the clerk.—Adopted.

Moved by Ald. Harrington that Mr. W. M. Hall, agent of H. D. Cary & Son, be allowed to present the merits of the Cary safe.—Adopted.

Moved by Ald. Steketee to accept the offer of the Diebold Safe Co. for the No. 35 safe, 50x28x16 inches, as per circular, providing the cabinet work be arranged to suit the council at same price mentioned, $164.16.

Ald. Ter Vree asked to be excused from voting on the question.—Request not granted. Ald. Kuite asked to be excused from voting on the question.—Granted. Motion carried. Yes, Ter Vree, Harrington, Bangs, De Merell, De Roo, Steketee and Bertsch.

Moved by Ald. Harrington that the Mayor and Clerk see to effecting the purchase of a safe.—Adopted.

By the Mayor:—GENTLEMEN: I call your attention to the necessity of taking action on the matter of the new engine house and jail; the bonds for the loan of $3,000 should be issued and negotiated. The location of the building or buildings secured, and plans and specifications obtained and adopted and work commenced and finished as soon as practicable, as both of these buildings are very much needed at the present time. I also recommend that the storage place of the gasoline used for street lamps be changed to some less exposed place, as it is too dangerous to be stored in public place, as an explosion is liable to occur when least expected and might result in the loss of life. Some more isolated place should be immediately secured to keep it.

P. H. McBride, Mayor.

Moved by Ald. Harrington that the message be accepted and adopted, except that part relating to the storage of gasoline.—Lost.

Moved by Ald. De Roo that the message be accepted, and that part of it referring to the negotiation of bonds be referred to the committee on Ways and Means.—Adopted.

Moved by Ald. Bangs that the matter of moving the gasoline building be referred to the Committee on Public Buildings and Property.—Adopted.

Moved by Ald. Kuite to adjourn.—Lost.

The Secretary of Protection Hose Company reported the resignation of Frank Van Ry and the election of John A. Pieters as a member of the company subject to the approval of the Common Council.—Approved.

The Chief Engineer of the Fire Department in a communication to the Council submitted the following recommendations, viz: That F. G. Nye be appointed assistant engineer; that two Babcock fire extinguishers be purchased and placed on the Hook and Ladder Truck; that 300 or 400 feet of hose be purchased to replace old hose and the purchase of five rubber coats to replace those burnt at the fire of the old town house; that the new engine house should receive the early attention of the council in order to get it completed before the winter sets in as the apparatus requires better protection from the weather than it now has.—The council, to be taken up on the order of unfinished business.

The following bills, having been approved by the Board of Water Commissioners, were certified to the council for payment: Standard Oil Co., 70c.; R. E. Werkman, 213-lb cords steam wood, $3.32; C. & W. M. R. Co., freight on 1 box fittings, 25c.—Allowed and warrants ordered issued on the city treasurer for the several amounts.

J. A. Ter Vree's bid to do city teaming at $2.50 per day, and by the bid at 21 cents, was accepted and job awarded to him.

The City Surveyor reported profile and estimates for the improving, grading and graveling of Twelfth street, between the center of River street and the Fair Grounds.—The grade was established and determined according to the survey and profile made by Geo. H. Sipp, City Surveyor, and all grades heretofore established and determined along said portion of Twelfth street, and not in conformity with said profile, were repealed and annulled.

Moved by Ald. Harrington that the profile, diagram, and estimates of the expense of the proposed grading and graveling of Twelfth street in the City of Holland, as made and prepared by Geo. H. Sipp, City Surveyor, and submitted to the council, be deposited with the city clerk for public examination, and that the city clerk be instructed to give notice thereof, and of the proposed improvement, and of the district to be assessed therefore, as determined by resolution of the common council, March 16th, 1886, by publishing the same for two weeks in the "HOLLAND CITY NEWS," and that Monday, June 7th, 1886, at 7.30 p. m., be and the same be hereby determined as the time when the common council will meet at the Council Rooms to consider any objections that may be made thereto.—Adopted.

Ald. Bertsch gave notice that at the next meeting of the common council he would introduce the following ordinances, viz: An ordinance entitled, "An Ordinance Relative to Pawnbrokers;" an ordinance entitled, "An Ordinance Relative to Auctioneers;" an ordinance entitled, "An Ordinance Relative to Showmen;" an ordinance entitled, "An Ordinance Relative to Peddlers, Hawkers, and persons selling or exposing for sale any goods, wares, merchandise, refreshments, or any kind of property or thing, from any stand, cart, vehicle, or other device in the streets, highways, or in or upon the wharves, docks, open places or spaces, public grounds, or buildings within the City of Holland;" an ordinance entitled, "An Ordinance to amend section ten of an ordinance" entitled, "An Ordinance Relative to Obstructing Streets and Sidewalks," passed April 6th, 1886, approved April 7th, 1886.

Moved by Ald. Bangs that that part of the Mayor's message, with reference to New Engine House, be referred to the Committee on Public Buildings and Property.—Adopted.

Moved by Ald. Bertsch that when Mr. Noble, city lamp lighter, has in his complete this term of lighting the street lamps and so informed the city clerk, the city clerk shall issue a warrant on the city treasurer in payment thereof.—Adopted.

On motion Dr. Henry Kremers was appointed City Physician and Health Officer. After several ballots being cast for the appointment of a president pro tem of the Common Council resulting in no choice the matter of appointment was laid upon the table.

Council adjourned to Tuesday, 7.30 p. m., May 25th, 1886.

Geo. H. Sipp, City Clerk.

Summer Resort.

Under the above heading the Grand Haven Evening Tribune had the following last week Thursday:

 We have received several letters from other cities asking us to try and get the citizens of this city to do something to encourage resorters to visit us. The people of Grand Rapids, would aid us in every way possible. The Grand Haven improvement association should appoint a committee to confer with the D. & M. railway officials to have excursions rates made between this city and Grand Rapids. As it now is Holland will catch the people as it did last summer, when 250,000 round trip tickets were sold from Grand Rapids to Holland. Our natural advantages are far superior to any other resort in Michigan, and yet nothing is done to improve them. A Grand Rapids man told us a few days ago that he knew of a great many people in his city that would much prefer coming here to going to Holland. The trouble is we have so many advantages and inducements that our people do not see the need of making more or improving what we have. We must remember that we have Holland, Petoskey and many other resorts to compete with, and we must not only make inducements for resorters to visit us, but we must let them know by advertising what we can do for them if they will come. Another point: When we do get them here let us treat them as our guests. Give them value received for their money and not lie awake nights to scheme how to fleece them. We want a nice crowd here this summer and we want them treated so well that next year they will come again and bring their friends with them. Let steps be taken to improve the surf bathing grounds and also let a way be provided for getting there. It is too far to walk in warm weather and we are not in favor of seeing our guests charged exorbitant rates for the privilege of riding to the lake through the dust. A small dock could be built at a little expense to land passengers on and we have plenty of steam yachts to run on this route. This would make this feature of our resort first-class in every respect. When this is done we could have some bath houses placed on the beach to take the place of the pens now used. One improvement will follow another until we have the finest resort in the west and can enjoy the presence of thousands of visitors every season. Our city will then take on new life and hard times will be unknown here. ***

Saturday steps were taken to organize an association of some thirty or forty of the business men of the place and the Common Council was asked to lease a tract of land, on the lake shore for the purpose of starting "a park." Time alone will tell how well they succeed with the enterprise.

THE MASTER OF THE HOUSE.

BY JOHN DENNIS.

He cannot walk, he cannot speak,
Nothing he knows of books and men,
He is the weakest of the weak,
And has not strength to hold a pen;
He has no pocket and no purse,
Nor ever yet has owned a penny,
But has more riches than his nurse,
Because he wants not any.

He rules his parents by a cry,
And holds them captive by a smile,
A despot, strong through infancy,
A king from lack of guile.
He lies upon his back and crows,
Or looks with grave eyes on his mother.
What can he mean? But I suppose
They understand each other.

Indoors or out, early or late,
There is no limit to his sway,
For, wrapped in baby robes of state,
He governs night and day.
Kisses he takes as a rightful due,
And, Turk-like, has his slaves to dress him.
His subjects bend before him, too,
I'm one of them. God bless him!

—London Spectator.

DOLLY.

We were schoolfellows, Dolly and I.
At a little dame school in the town close by;
I carried her books, and she held my hand—
Two innocent children of God's own hand.
We would marry when we grew up, we said,
Grave plans for the time to come we laid—
A small boy I, and a wee girl she,
In those bygone days—ah me! ah me!

We grew—we were married—Dolly and I.
At the quaint old church in the town close by;
The farm was purchased, the fees were paid—
"What a blithe young couple!" the neighbors said.
And so we were till the winds blew bleak,
And chilled the roses on Dolly's cheek,
Like the waning tide of a waveless sea,
Her life ebbed gently—ah me! ah me!

If you want to know why I oftentimes sigh,
You must come with me to the town close by;
You must see the church where our vows were said.

And the mound that covers the restful dead,
For my love is sleeping the quiet sleep
That the Shepherd gives to His weaned sheep—
And the whole is not what it used to be,
Ere its sunlight faded for her and me.
—Chambers' Journal.

HARRY'S NEW HOME.

BY LAURA J. ARTER.

"What is the matter, Bessie? You look pale enough to scare one, and I do believe you've been crying!"

"Oh! I'm just as wretched as I can be, Josie. My head aches dreadfully, and the baby fretted nearly all night, and—Harry forgot to kiss me this morning." Here the little woman broke down in tears, while Josie, unused to such outbursts of feeling from her quiet sister, essayed a word of comfort, as she rescued the three-weeks old baby from its heap of soft blankets, and set about the work of dressing it.

"Never mind, Bess, the headache will soon pass off, and the baby is sweet enough now, to make up for his bad behavior of the night, and Harry will give you two kisses when he comes home, to atone for the omission this morning."

Then she began talking to the little pink baby, who blinked his eyes in the light, and looked as if he had never cried in his short life.

"Oh! you blessed little baby! You darling, soft-mousey—suntie could hug the life out of you this minute. Do you know, Bessie, I think his eyes are just like yours, and his head is shaped for all the world like his papa's."

A sob was the only response, and Josie looked up in surprise, to find her sister still weeping.

"Bess, what does all you? You're not told me everything yet, I feel sure, because it isn't at all like you to cry about such trifles. There's some trouble on your mind that you're trying to conceal from me. What is it?"

Between her sobs, poor Bessie related her story.

"I thought at first I'd never tell anyone, if it killed me, but oh! I'm so miserable I can't help confiding in you, Josie. You see I've been thinking for several weeks that there was a change in Harry. He seemed so preoccupied, so—I can hardly explain it, but I felt he was concealing something from me."

"Well, this morning he had been walking baby to sleep, and as he laid him down on the bed, a folded paper dropped out of his pocket. He didn't notice it, and I never thought of it again, until he had been gone some time, when I accidentally touched it with my hand, and almost without realizing what I was doing, commenced reading it.
Here it is." And covering her face with her hands, Mrs. Mitchell tried to shut out her misery.

Josie's pretty face grew scarlet with indignation, as she read:

"DEAR CLARA:—I am so afraid of arousing suspicion that I dare not come around this morning, though I long to do so. What do you think of the pictures? Are they not lovely? They will help to make our little home bright and beautiful, though there will be one dear, faithful one there who would make any home full of gladness for me. But I've no time now for sentiment—I'll save my love-talk for the happy evenings which will soon be here."

"I am glad you are pleased with the carpet;
your taste is so exquisite, I feared I could not suit you. The piano will be here next week—a Steinway, of course. What a little witch you are to lead one into extravagances."

"My life has been cramped and pinched since my marriage, but now I am coming out of the shadows into the sunshine."

"What a fortunate thing that no one in the place is acquainted with you. If they were, it might lead to awkward revelations. I'll be around this evening for an hour or two. I'll tell Bessie I'm going to a meeting. It is foolish, I know, but I almost feel sorry to deceive her so, but of course it can't be helped."

"Lovingly,

"HARRY."

Josie ground her little white teeth together as she finished, and her wrath broke forth in a storm of angry words.

"The base, deceitful wretch! I never could have believed it of him, had I not seen this letter with my own eyes. I don't see how he dare look you in the face again.
No wonder he forgot to kiss you! I just wish I were a man—I'd thrash him within an inch of his life—I would indeed. Oh, you poor, innocent little baby, Aunt Josie would rather see you dead than to know you would ever be such a perfidious wretch as your father."

In spite of her savage and rather unwomanly words, Josie shed some very womanly tears, over the soft, baby face she had gathered up close to her heart.
Baby, as if in sympathy, set up a vigorous cry, which spoke volumes for the strength of his lungs, and Josie tried in vain to pacify him.

In the midst of this distress, a gentle rap was heard at the door, and Mrs.
Mitchell hurriedly spread a handkerchief over her face, and feigned sleep, while Josie poked the tell-tale letter into the fire, applied a wet towel to her eyes for a moment, and then, with a hypocritically cheerful countenance, opened the door.

A little, fat dumping of a woman hastened into the room, seeming to have brought some of the sunshine in with her.
"Good morning, Josie! How is Mrs.
Mitchell this morning? Dear, dear, baby, do stop crying—you'll waken your mamma if you don't. Give him to me, Josie. You don't know how to manage him. Poor little thing! Did Aunt Josie stick pins in him? There—there—there!"

And baby, as if yielding to the soothing voice and motherly touch, stopped crying, and did not renew it, all through the trying process of bathing and dressing. Finally, the task completed, Mrs. Moore held him up for inspection, a large quantity of flannel, linen, tucks, and embroidery, and a very small amount of baby.

A few feminine rhapsodies from the two ladies followed, of course, and then Mrs.
Moore, little suspecting the pain she was causing, said:

"Wasn't Mrs. Mitchell delighted with her pictures? They are so exquisite, so life-like, and the very ones she admired so much when we were down town together one day. She could scarcely pass them, but she said she could not afford to buy them. I was glad for her, when I saw Mr.
Mitchell purchasing them. By the way, who was the young lady helping him to select those beautiful vases the other day? I happened into Sewell & Howard's while they were in there. She really has one of the sweetest faces I ever saw."

The poor, sick wife, listening with the painful eagerness which only a heart filled with love, grief, and jealousy can know, could not repress a slight moan, and Josie, glad of any excuse to keep from replying, got up hastily and busied herself about the bed.

Mrs. Moore laid baby down in his crib, and fearing that further conversation might disturb Mrs. Mitchell, slipped quietly out of the room, promising to come in and dress baby again next day.

As soon as the door closed, Josie stooped down and put her arms around her sister's neck.

"My poor darling! It seems too cruel—it is unjust to the last degree that you should have to suffer so. Just think how you have economized ever since your marriage, working late and early, and often betrayed your strength, always patiently sacrificing your own pleasure, for the sake of helping Harry and not being a burden to him. And you've worn your old dresses, and half starved your intellect, because books cost so much, and have hardly allowed yourself to think of music even, much as you love it, fearing Harry might think you felt the need of a piano."

"He could not get one for you—for one of the best and most devoted wives in the world, but he can buy an elegant one for this wretched girl, with her pretty young face, which has made him lose all sense of shame and honor." And Josie's black eyes snapped scornfully, in spite of her tears.

"Don't—don't, Josie! I can't bear to hear it all. Oh! I have tried so hard to be a good wife to him, working and saving gladly, because I was so anxious for a dear home of our own, where I could have a little yard with a few tea-roses and vines to make it beautiful. What have my sweet dreams come to? A black, miserable end.
I have not even my husband's love. Oh!
Josie, how can I bear it? Were it not for my sweet baby, I should pray to die."

"Don't talk about dying, Bess. I'd live, just to spite him—the unfeeling monster!
Get well just as fast as you can, and we'll at least have the comfort of letting the guilty creatures know that we are not blinded.
I'll follow Harry down town to-night, when he goes to that meeting, which will be the first step towards proving his guilt, and meantime, you must pretend ignorance, wifely trust, and all that."

So Josie, planning away eagerly, began to feel quite detective-like, and had not her sister been so miserable, would rather have enjoyed the novelty of being an "avenger."

Mrs. Mitchell appeared at the tea-table that night for the first time since her illness. Josie had coaxed her to wear one of her own pretty wrappers, and had arranged the mass of soft, brown hair quite artistically.
And Mrs. Mitchell looked very pretty indeed, for her eyes were bright and her cheeks flushed with excitement, and the little hands, usually brown from hard work, were now white as lilies.

Josie looked at her admiringly, and wondered if Harry could have the heart to leave her for the sake of that other woman.

It seemed that he had indeed become hardened enough even for that, for after almost carrying his wife into the little parlor, and affectionately arranging the pillows on the lounge for her, he picked up his hat and said, half apologetically, that it was too bad, but he had to attend a meeting down town.

He flushed up hotly when Josie asked what kind of a meeting, and where it was to be held, and murmuring something about important business in a distant part of the city, hurried from the room.

Josie was on her feet in a moment, and jerking on her hat and cloak, rushed out of the door just in time to see Harry jump into a hack and drive rapidly away. Feeling very much like crying, she returned to comfort her sister, who was heart-sick and wretched.

Mr. Mitchell came home at half past ten that night, but as Josie had gone to bed, and his wife pretended to be sleeping, he was saved the annoyance of being questioned. Thanking his stars for this good luck, he crept quietly into bed, without rousing either wife or baby.

Mrs. Mitchell bore up bravely under her trials. With a pure conscience and clear, steady mind, she determined not to sink under trouble, but, in doing her duty, to rise above it.

Josie, more passionate and impetuous than her sister, could scarcely restrain her indignation, and never ceased her scrutiny of her brother-in-law's conduct.

Her vigilance was at last rewarded, by finding a card which Harry dropped as he sat at dinner one day. It was simply the number of a house—381 Elm street—but somehow, with woman's intuition, she felt that it was the number of that house.

So, that night, as soon as Mr. Mitchell left the house, Josie procured a carriage, and the two ladies were soon driving towards Elm street. Telling the driver to wait till they returned, Josie and her sister stopped a moment before entering the gate, to look around them.

It was a clear, moonlight night, and they could distinctly see a pretty yard with a shell walk winding in and out amidst the shrubbery, and beyond it a neat brick house, substantial and home-like.

They advanced slowly up the walk, scarcely knowing what to do next, their courage gradually deserting them. By some kind of carelessness or lucky chance, the front door had been left slightly ajar.

Josie stood with her hand on the bell, when the sound of Mr. Mitchell's voice within caused her to change her mind, and quietly pushing open the door she entered, beckoning to her sister to follow her.

They found themselves in a pretty hall, where the gas was burning but dimly. Mr.
Mitchell's hat and overcoat hung on the hat-rack, with a kind of at-home air, that sent a pang through his wife's heart.

They stopped a moment to gain courage, and then walked quietly to the door of the parlor, where they heard Harry talking.

Looking in, they saw a pretty, large room beautifully carpeted, with handsome furniture, several fine pictures on the walls, an elegant piano, and an artistic mantel covered with lovely bric-a-brac, underneath which a bright gas fire was sparkling and glowing. A fantastic table was covered with pots of flowers in full blossom—roses, pansies, and primroses lending their sweetness to add to the attractiveness of the room.

Mr. Mitchell stood before the fire, a picture of contentment. Beside him stood a young girl, dressed with quiet elegance, her golden hair done up high on her pretty, shapely head, her sweet face turned up to look at the tall man beside her, her violet eyes full of admiring fondness.

Mrs. Mitchell drew a short, agonized breath, as she saw her happy rival, but no word escaped her white lips.

"Well, it really is pleasant here now, isn't it, Clara? Do you know, since I have become accustomed to this delightful house, the poor little parlor at home has begun to look so dim and cheerless that I wonder how we ever could have lived in it all these years. But for you, I might have gone on in the same way years longer.
Well, I am thankful those times are past, and I intend to begin enjoying life now."

Then suddenly changing his tone, he
said:

"I half believe that shrewd little sister-in-law of mine has begun to suspect something. She has kept me in constant fear of discovery for a week past. And I actually feel conscience-stricken—stricken for being so deceitful with poor Bessie. She is shut up in that dingy, close little house, thinking her liege lord is out on business, and so I am—a business of true love, isn't it, Clara?" And he stooped and kissed the pretty, rosy lips.

This was too much for Josie to witness without giving voice to her wrath, and she burst into the room, her cheeks flaming, her eyes flashing, her whole form dilated with anger.

"Shame, shame on you, Harry Mitchell!
Are you lost to all honor and decency, that for the sake of this wicked girl you give up the truest love that was ever bestowed on man? Look at your poor victim, whose heart you have wrung with the keenest anguish! Are you not proud of your work?"

Mrs. Mitchell, white and trembling, with a strange ringing in her ears, and a deadly sickness and weakness stealing over her, would have fallen to the floor, had not her husband sprung forward and caught her in his arms.

"My precious wife—my own true heart, look up! Oh! darling, have you doubted me?"

"Doubted you! Doubted such an innocent, pure, true man as you? O, impossible!" And Josie laughed scornfully.

A little white hand was laid softly on her arm, and a gentle voice said pleadingly:

"I am Harry's half-sister—you are the sister of his beloved wife. I had thought to myself that we should love each other dearly. Let my hope become a reality."

Josie burst into an uncontrollable fit of laughing and crying, and there really seemed to be danger of Harry's sister being suffocated in her embrace. The reaction had been so sudden; the transition from anger to gladness so great and complete, that she felt half wild.

Then followed satisfactory explanations.
Clara's grandfather, with whom she had lived since the death of her parents, when she was almost an infant, had recently died. Through her loving persuasion and gentle influence, he had been induced to bequeath twenty thousand dollars to Harry, who had in some way offended him when he was a mere boy, and with whom he had had no communication for years. He had also forbidden any correspondence between the two children, but immediately after his death Clara had written to Harry, and also announced her intention of visiting him.

Harry immediately thought of the plan which he had carried out, of buying a comfortable house, having Clara come to help select and arrange the furniture, and then, after everything was in perfect order, bring his wife into it, and tell her it was home.

The latter part of his scheme, which was to have been fulfilled on the morrow, was spoiled by his unlucky letter, and Josie's skill as a detective.

Josie, though contrite in spirit, declared that no good ever did come of concealing anything from one's wife, and I quite agree with her.

Harry whispered to his now happy wife:
"My dear, brave little Bessie, who toiled so bravely for my sake—she shall stint and toil no longer. No more faded dresses, turned and turned again, but robes fit to adorn her dear form hereafter, and books and music and flowers, shall satisfy her longing soul."

My story is done, or I would tell how the wonderful baby was sent for, and the tired, happy mother found the daintiest crib for its use in her beautiful bedroom up stairs.

And how Josie and Clara loved each other dearly, and often laughed merrily over their first tragic meeting, and a great many other equally interesting things, but I won't, because, as I said before, my story is done.

Lighting Power of Coal.

Franklin Institute tests indicate that one pound of coal burned under a good boiler yields a light of about twenty candles by the incandescent electric system. The same weight of coal gives from the naked arc light about 158 candles, only 80 candles being ordinarily available, on account of the shading of arc lights. The gas from one pound of bituminous coal yields from 14 to 17 candles. The greater economy of fuel in electric lighting is offset by the increased expense for machinery and attention.

A WORKSHOP of the stone age has been discovered near the gates of Paris, and has yielded nearly 900 hand-worked flints, including pieces of polished hatchets, scrapers, blades, points, and two or three little polishers.

The Principle of the Telephone.

The telephone is an invention for reproducing the human voice by the agency of electricity at long distances from the speaker. Its principle and construction may be described as follows: If a wire from a galvanic battery be wound around a bar of soft iron, the bar will be made magnetic, and remain thus while the current continues to pass around it; when this ceases its magnetism disappears. If the bar is of steel, however, its magnetism is permanent;
that is, though the current is removed,
it still remains magnetic. Now, since electricity can make a magnet, it is possible, in turn, to make a magnet the source of electricity. Suppose a piece of iron be brought close to the end of a steel magnet, it will be forcibly held there by the magnet's power of attraction. A wire may be wound around the bar and its ends joined, then if the piece of iron be pulled off from the magnet bar, and stuck on again, a current of electricity will run through the wire every time this is done. Electricity produced in this way is called magneto-electricity, and the current in the wire is said to be an induced electric current.

If, now, this wire be extended to a distance, no matter how great, and coiled around another magnetized bar, the currents induced in it, by making and breaking the contact of the piece of soft iron with the first magnet, will at the same time affect the magnetism in the distant magnet. A still more remarkable fact is that these induced currents may be sent through the wire without the actual contact of the soft iron with the steel magnet. If the iron is brought very near to the magnet and then withdrawn, an electric thrill runs through the wire and is felt in the distant magnet, just as if the contact had been actually made and broken. And so, if the soft iron be moved before the magnet, no matter how rapidly or gently, an electric pulse is felt with each motion of the magnet at the other end of the connecting wire. This illustration gives the fundamental principle of the telephone. No galvanic battery is required, as in the telegraph, to furnish an electrical current, the motions of the soft iron acting upon the magnet produce a current sufficiently powerful, even when these motions are the most delicate possible. The piece of iron in the telephone is called the diaphragm.
It is a thin, circular sheet of iron, a couple of inches in diameter, held by its rim, and adjusted so that its center comes very close to the end of the magnetized bar. Its motions, which are to induce the impelling of the electrical current through the wire, are the vibrations of air, caused by the human voice in speaking. Everyone knows that sounds are propagated through the aerial medium by wave motions of this medium, and that we hear them by the impact of these waves on the drum of the ear. It is also well known that these waves differ in length and rapidity of movement, and that these differences give the peculiarities of tone in musical instruments and the human voice. Now, these waves, started by a person talking, beat against the diaphragm of the telephone and throw it into vibrations.
This iron diaphragm, acting inductively on the magnet, originates magnetoelectric currents in the wire helix about it, and these travel along the connecting wire to another helix encircling the magnet at the other end, and, acting upon that, exert electro-magnetic effects which increase and decrease the strength of the magnet, thus setting its diaphragm into vibration. These vibrations correspond exactly with those of the first diaphragm, and the second diaphragm is thus made to restore to the air in one place what the first one received from the air in another place.
These air-waves falling on the tympanum of the listener, reproduce the original sound or voice. The arrangement being the same at both ends, the machine, of course, works both ways; so that when a person is talking to the distant diaphragm the direction is reversed, and the sounds are emitted by the diaphragm near by, and thus the original talker gets his responses.—

Color and Complexion.

The artist will employ for a brunette brilliant yellows and splendid reds. A jonquil-colored ribbon, a scarlet camelia in the black tresses, a poppy-colored bodice, partially softened by Chantilly lace, will give a dashing character to the figure so decorated, and instead of diminishing its effect, will add to it new force. But if we have to deal with a delicate brunette with slightly faded features, or a brunette whose skin is comparatively fair and eyes of a velvety black, we must no longer make use of striking and decided colors. Here, on the contrary, soft colors should be employed, especially pale blue, because that is the shade which approaches nearest to white, without having its ravenous.

If the hair of a blonde be golden or red, it ought without doubt to be accompanied by its complementary color, a dark violet velvet bonnet, a tuft of violets in the hair, a deep lilac dress, will go with it marvelously well. There is another color which suits all shades of red hair—green of a medium intensity. If the complexion of the blonde be delicate and fresh, an orange, Turkey, or ruby red will set off the freshness and delicacy, partly by similarity, partly by contrast. Women who are placed, so to speak, in the half-shades of color, may wear either what suits brunettes or blondes, provided the tones of their dress and ornaments be subdued in proportion to the degree of warmth in their complexion. Pure yellow or deep red would ill suit chestnut hair, even if dark; but half-tints, such as pale yellow, maize, deep yellow, turquoise blue and hazy blue, would harmonize well with the neutral character of these natural colors. As to those who have ash-colored hair, and skin in keeping with it, eyes blue as the sea or sea green, their delicate and extreme softness calls for half-warm tints, with suggestions of neutral gray or slashings of pale blue. Black velvet gives them fairness without detracting from the distinction and delicacy which are the characteristics of their complexion, and pearls form in their ornaments, a happy consonance, provided their cold color is relieved by one that is decided, tastefully used and concentrated within a space, such as a polished but uncut garnet, a ruby or a trinket of gold.—*Art

Red-Pepper Papers.

"Old Un," said the Deacon, "that was a good story of Honest Bob and the man who had a passion to be rich. It reminded me of another. When I was a roystish youngster about town, before you were born—old as you are—we had a very grasping banker here. He was always on the alert to enlarge his business connection, and it was the fashion to say of him that he cooked up most of his skinkint schemes in church."

"Among the whole-souled commercial men in town was one that I will call Beckford. Skinkint had long had a feeler out for Beckford's deposits, and one day he made a direct bid for them."

"Come over and do business with us," he said. "You can have any accommodation you want, but give us your business, old fellow."

"Beckford said he'd think about it, and a few days later he dropped in on Skinkint."

"I've decided," he said, "to transfer my account to your bank at your solicitation, and I want a line of discount." Skinkint's eagerness and pretended liberality suddenly cooled.

"Why, certainly, Mr. Beckford. Glad to have you for a customer, but business is business, you know. We like to be sure of our ground, so if you don't object it might be well enough for you to make a sort of statement as to your capital. In short, how much do you consider yourself worth?"

"See here, old Skinkint," bridled the indignant Beckford. "You solicited my business, confound you! But since I'm in for it I don't mind answering you.
What am I worth? Well, blast you, I've got ten times—yes, fifty times—as much as you have!"

"Skinkint was taken away back. Beckford was in very moderate circumstance and the banker didn't know what to make of his extravagant statement. He finally asked him what he meant."

"I mean, you old rip, that I have enough, and that's a thousand times more than you'll ever have. Here you are twice my age and you grab as eagerly now as you grabbed in youth.
Oh, no, you'll never be worth as much as I am. It isn't in you. That's what I mean."

"I don't know that it has any particular relation to the story," added the Deacon, "but it is a fact that old man Skinkint died by his own hand."

"And Beckford?"

"Turned banker himself, by George!
and got rich, in fact. After he retired he went to New York and enjoyed his fortune like a jolly old brick as long as he lived. He left two or three sons, chips of the old block, who entered the law and who are to-day as successful as they are honored and honorable."—

A Beautiful Blow.

"One day in 1867," says Mr. Ed.
Johnson, of the Boston Ideals, "I was standing in front of the old Logan House at Altoona, Pa., admiring a superb-looking man who was pacing up and down the walk, meditating, presumably, as the rest of us were, on the length of minutes when one is waiting for a delayed train. Presently a big, broad-shouldered molder, who seemed to recognize the superb gentleman, shambled up near him and muttered something which was evidently intended to offend him. The superb gentleman, however, paid no more attention to it than to look rather sharply at the molder and pass on. Soon the molder repeated the performance, with about the same result, and the lookers-on began to wonder what it all meant. By and by the molder, evidently mistaking the superb gentleman's indifference to him for cowardice, stopped squarely before him and said something which would not look well in print about the d—d Yankee general."

"I never saw a handsomer blow in my life. It landed squarely on the jaw of the molder and seemed to raise him neatly and gracefully into the air and then stretch him tidily at full length on the platform several feet away. The superb gentleman looked at the back of his hand with an expression of disgust as if condemning the hand for what it had done, and then resumed his promenade as if nothing had happened. The last I saw of the molder his friends were helping him away, but I frequently saw Gen. Hancock after that, and came to know that he was always the same kind of man—slow to take offense, but wonderfully effective in punishing one who did succeed in offending."—*Chi-

What a Change!
A few short weeks ago that young girl was the personification of health, vigor, and beauty. The blush upon her cheeks rivalled that of the rose; her step was light and buoyant, her every movement was a revelation of perfect physical health. Yet now she is pallid and haggard, and her superabundant vitality has given place to a strange dullness and lassitude. What has caused this change? Functional irregularities, which can be cured by Dr. Pierce's "Favorite Prescription," a remedy to which thousands of women to-day owe their lives. All druggists.

It is a difficult job to set a hen or a good example.

"Fire-proof Paper May Be Made,"
says a scientific exchange, "from a pulp, consisting of one part vegetable fiber, two parts asbestos, one-tenth part borax, and one-fifth part alum." It is a pity that such facts as the one following cannot be written, printed, or otherwise preserved, upon some sort of indestructible paper. "My wife suffered seven years and was bedridden, too," said W. E. Huestis, of Emporia, Kansas; "a number of physicians failed to help her. Dr. Pierce's 'Golden Medical Discovery' cured her." All druggists sell this remedy. Everybody ought to keep it. It only needs a trial.

Protect the Wells.
The idea that the water of our wells is the purest obtainable was long ago exploded. Well water may be pure, but its degree of purity depends wholly upon its distance from all filth. It is now admitted that in many soils both air and water travel very freely under the surface. Some are so porous and deep that water will easily settle through them and the bulk of the filth be retained on the top loam; and in such cases it may be said that ordinary cultivation and the growing vegetation will absorb the objectionable element. Water in such localities is regarded pure and safe. But where wells are shallow and dug in clayey or impervious soil, having near to or at their bottom an impervious stratum, they are likely to be receptacles for filth contamination for many rods around. It does not follow that because the contents of sink drains soak out of sight that the deadly element therein is gotten rid of; it too frequently finds its way to the water which the family are prone to extol as the very perfection of purity. It is never safe to depend upon taste in this matter; if there is a source of contamination near the well, rid yourself of it without delay; at least do not rest content until you have had the water subjected to a thorough chemical analysis. Dr. Folsom, who was so long connected with the Massachusetts Board of Health, Lunacy and Charity, said that "it is impossible to say that a well is safe at any ordinary distance from a source of constant pollution of the neighboring soil, like a privy, cesspool, barnyard, etc." He further remarks that "there is always a risk," and that "the ordinary privy should be abolished." There is no doubt that many cases of scarlet fever, diphtheria, etc., often have their parentage in the cesspool. Typhoid fever, which has in so many cases been traceable to polluted wells, was some years ago found to be most prevalent in the rural districts. To provide proper sanitary measures will, to be sure, take a little time; but it need involve very little expense. Where there is an abundant supply of running water near by, underground drains will satisfactorily dispose of animal filth from a sanitarian point of view; but on the farm it is desirable to utilize this for fertilizing purposes, and an abundant supply of peat or ashes daily thrown into the vault, sink-drain, barnyard, etc., will keep noxious odors from the air. If you seek a rule as to how near a well may safely be located to any filth collection, know that if you describe a circle about the well as a centre, with a radius three times its depth, and if there is no cause of pollution within the circumference, the water is probably uncontaminated.—American Cultivator.

A Plucky Youth.
When Gen. Tims was about 16 years old he met with an exciting adventure. He got home late one night and entered the house through a window. His father, a very excitable old gentleman, was under the impression that a burglar was in the house, and catching a glimpse of a dark figure in the hall, he fired at it six times with his revolver. Having exhausted his powder and ball, old Tims flashed a light upon the situation and discovered that the supposed burglar was his son. After the flurry was over the boy was asked why he had not revealed his identity. Turning his solemn and impressive face to his father he replied with quiet dignity: "I thought I'd wait till you got through. I don't like to interrupt you."
"But, me che-ild," groaned old Tims, "when the bullets whistled around your head, what were your sensations, what were your thoughts?"
"Which?" inquired the youngster.
"What did you think about?"
"Nothing," was the calm response; "nothing at all."
And that was all they could get out of him. The delighted father was so proud of the boy's coolness under fire that he related the incident to everybody in town. After that young Tims had a tremendous reputation for courage.—Atlanta Constitution.

Gabriel.
It was raining in torrents, and Evangeline stood by her window looking out into the night.
"Why dost thou wait there, Evangeline, my daughter?" inquired the mother.
"I am waiting for Gabriel, mother," replied the girl, tenderly.
"He will not come, my dear, in all this rain."
"Yes, he will, mother mine. Gabriel does not fear a little wet like this. He is a Baptist."
In ten minutes Gabriel was in the parlor asking for a drink of water.—Washington Critic.

Dr. R. Butler, Master of Arts, Cambridge University, England, says: "St. Jacobs Oil acts like magic."

Make Haste to Defend Yourself
If you live in a locality where malaria is prevalent, with a preventive that experience indicates as the most reliable of medical safeguards—Hostetter's Stomach Bitters. Entirely free from the objections—and they are valid ones—which attach to the mineral alkaloid quinine, it is far more effective, and its effects are not evanescent, but lasting, unlike those of the drug. There are portions of our land—and none more beautiful and more fertile—which at no season of the year are entirely exempt from the malarial scourge. In such regions Hostetter's Stomach Bitters has undergone a continuous test for the past thirty years, with results which have established its reputation beyond all cavil as a special defense against every form of malarial disease. For biliousness, also, it is an acknowledged specific, and it is a potent remedy for constipation, dyspepsia, rheumatism, and an impoverished condition of the blood.

Amber Beads and Croup.
In response to a letter asking if there is any truth in the theory that a string of amber beads kept around a child's neck will prevent croup, Babyhood says:

"As much truth as in the theory that the same ornament will prevent hay-fever, or the prettier belief that amber worn at a wedding brings good luck to the bridal pair. Pulverized amber used to be sold as a love-philter. While nobody believes nowadays with Moore's peri that the fossil gum which looks like crystallized sunshine is wept by the sorrowing sea-bird, enough mystery clings to its origin to make it a favorite with the superstitious. Except that it is lighter than glass, and, as an indifferent conductor of heat, not so cold, there is no advantage in it above a string of yellow glass beads as curative, preventive, or charm."

SOME persons confer what they call a "trifling favor," but they expect something in return, if not in magnitude in multitude. They expect small change for their dollar.

A perfect specific—Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy.

Do you enjoy good health? asked Cross. "Why, yes, of course. Who doesn't?" replied Ross tersely.

Another Life Saved.

J. C. Gray, of Dadeville, Ala., writes us: "I have been using your DR. WM. HALL'S BALM FOR THE LUNGS, and I can say of a truth it is far superior to any other lung preparation in the world. My mother was confined to her bed four weeks with a cough, and had every attention by a good physician, but he failed to effect a cure, and when I got one bottle of your DR. WM. HALL'S BALM FOR THE LUNGS, she began to mend right away. I can say in truth that it was the means of saving her life. I know of five cases that Dr. Hall's Balm has cured, and my mother is better than she has been for twenty years."

A QUESTION ABOUT Brown's Iron Bitters ANSWERED.

The question has probably been asked thousands of times: "How can Brown's Iron Bitters cure everything?" Well, it doesn't. But it does cure any disease for which a reputable physician would prescribe IRON. Physicians recognize iron as the best restorative agent known to the profession, and inquiry of any leading chemical firm will substantiate the assertion that there are more preparations of iron than of any other substance used in medicine. This shows conclusively that iron is acknowledged to be the most important factor in successful medical practice. It is, however, a remarkable fact, that prior to the discovery of BROWN'S IRON BITTERS, no perfectly satisfactory iron combination had ever been found.

BROWN'S IRON BITTERS does not merely nourish, but produces constipation—all other iron medicines do. BROWN'S IRON BITTERS cures Indigestion, Biliousness, Weakness, Dyspepsia, Malaria, Chills and Fevers, Tired Feeling, General Debility, Pains in the Side, Back or Limbs, Headache and Neuralgia—for all these ailments iron is prescribed daily.

BROWN'S IRON BITTERS not only cures in a minute. Like all other thorough medicines, it acts slowly. When taken by men the first symptom of benefit is renewed energy. The muscles then become firmer, the digestion improves, the bowels are active. In women the effect is usually more rapid and marked. The eyes begin at once to brighten; the skin clears up; healthy color comes to the cheeks; nervousness disappears; functional derangements become regular, and if a nursing mother, abundant sustenance is supplied for the child. Remember Brown's Iron Bitters in the ONLY iron medicine that is not injurious. Physicians and Druggists recommend it.

"She is Beautiful,"
"But—her breath—oh horrors!"
That sickening odor comes from Catarrh, caused by a Scrofulous taint in the blood, for which the best remedy is Ayer's Sarsaparilla.

"My daughter suffered for years with an obstinate and offensive Catarrh. Her voice was affected; her throat filled with purulent matter; she complained of headache, with pains over the eyes, and in the nose, and was fearful that her lungs were involved in the disease. Physicians prescribed for her, but yet she grew worse, until finally she lost all sense of smell and taste. She had no appetite, became bilious, sallow, weak, emaciated, and discouraged. Having heard Ayer's Sarsaparilla highly recommended for Catarrh, I purchased a dozen bottles, determined that this medicine should have a thorough trial. My daughter commenced taking it, and, before she had finished ten bottles, was entirely cured. She is now in perfect health."—S. Schreiner, Sag Harbor, N. Y.
